Subject: Re: No Burial Site

Dear Mr Cavalier, you are correct in so far as it was "suspected" because of the darkened soil. However on inspection and actual testing by Forge Environmental in consultation with PHE, the dark soil did not turn out to be a burial pit but darkened soil from buried and rusting metal. So no burial pit and the conclusions of both PHE and SSDC's Environmental Health Service stand.

Please let me know if there is anything else I can help you with and as with our last email exchange, please let me know if you would like the exchanges on the web site under 14/02554 and 15/03942.

Yours sincerely

Subject: Burial Site

Dear Sirs,

MPC are concerned that in both the email from Marc Dorfman on 11 June and the Environmental Health Memo to Marc Dorfman from Paul Huntington, it is stated that burial sites have not been found.

MPC were at the meeting on 23 October where the AMG consultants indicated that a suspected burial pit had been found. Black material indicating burning was mentioned and pictures were shown.

We are concerned that the presence of the suspected burial pit has been somehow forgotten, despite what we all heard at the meeting.

Perhaps it is because the documents from AMG do not set things out clearly.

Once you have looked into it, please let us know whether you now agree that there is a suspected burial pit at the site.

MPC are also concerned regarding the removal of suspected topsoil, How would this soil be collected and where would it be transported /deposited, surely not Mudford or surrounding villages?

Regards

Tony Cavalier
